CASE NO. 3:17-CV-02335-WHA

PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR CLASS CERTIFICATION

Date: June 28, 2018

Time: 8:00 a.m.

Ctrm.: 12

Judge: Hon. William Alsup

1 NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR CLASS CERTIFICATION

2 TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

3 PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on June 28, 2018, at 8:00 a.m. or as soon thereafter as the 4 matter may be heard, in Courtroom 12 of the United States District Court for the Northern District
5 of California, located at 450 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, CA, 94102, plaintiffs Paula 6 Blair, Andrea Robinson, and Falechia Harris will and hereby do move this Court for certification
7 of their class and subclass claims against Defendants Rent-A-Center, Inc. and Rent-A-Center
8 West, Inc. (collectively “RAC”) under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23. Plaintiffs also move 9 for themselves and one other class member, Celinda Garza, to be appointed as Class 10 Representatives, and for Dostart Hannink & Coveney LLP and Altshuler Berzon LLP to be 11 appointed as Class Counsel.

12 Plaintiffs seek to certify a class of all individuals who entered into a rent-to-own 13 transaction with RAC in California at any time between March 13, 2013, and the date notice is 14 sent to the class. Plaintiffs seek to pursue class claims alleging violations of California’s Karnette 15 Rental-Purchase Act, Cal. Civ. Code §§1812.620 et seq., Consumers Legal Remedies Act, Civ.
16 Code §§1750 et seq., and Unfair Competition Law, Civ. Code §§17200 et seq. Plaintiffs also seek 17 to pursue subclass claims alleging violations of California usury law on behalf of class members 18 for whose transactions RAC has no applicable arbitration agreement. In the absence of a signed 19 arbitration agreement, there is no contractual limitation on those subclass members’ ability to 20 pursue prospective and retroactive relief under California usury law.

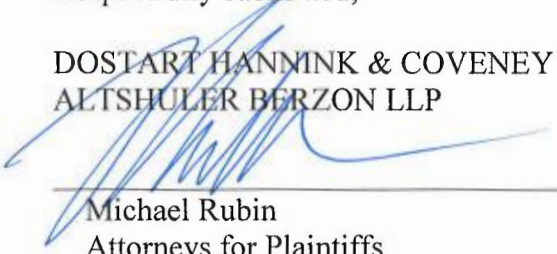

21 Plaintiffs seek certification under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 23(b)(3), or in the 22 alternative, Rule 23(b)(2), having satisfied the requirements of both. Common issues predominate 23 in this case, and class treatment is superior to requiring putative class members to pursue 24 individual actions. In the alternative, plaintiffs seek certification of a class to pursue injunctive 25 and declaratory relief under Rule 23(b)(2), because RAC “has acted or refused to act on grounds 26 that apply generally to the class, so that final injunctive relief or corresponding declaratory relief is 27 appropriate respecting the class as a whole.”

1 This motion is based on this Notice of Motion, plaintiffs' Memorandum of Points and 2 Authorities, the declarations of Paula Blair, Andrea Robinson, Falechia Harris, Celinda Garza, 3 David Breshears, Zachariah P. Dostart, and Michael Rubin submitted herewith, any reply
4 memoranda or other papers plaintiffs may file, any argument the Court may entertain, and all 5 pleadings and papers on file in this matter.

1 MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

2 I. INTRODUCTION

3 This is a consumer class action against the largest rent-to-own company in California, 4 defendants Rent-A-Center, Inc. and Rent-A-Center West, Inc. (“RAC”). Plaintiffs contend that 5 RAC violated the Karmette Rental-Purchase Act, Civ. Code §§1812.620 et seq., which regulates 6 the prices that rent-to-own companies may charge their customers. Plaintiffs also bring related 7 claims under California’s Consumer Legal Remedies Act (“CLRA”), Unfair Competition Law 8 (“UCL”), and usury law, although the usury claims are limited to the subclass of customers for 9 whose transactions RAC does not have an applicable arbitration agreement.

10 The parties’ disputes present common questions with common answers. Once the 11 threshold questions of statutory construction are resolved, RAC’s Karmette Act pricing liability 12 can be adjudicated by applying the statutory formulae to RAC’s computerized transaction database 13 and other records (RAC is required by statute to maintain that information, and produced a 14 database of all putative class members’ transactions and other records in response to this Court’s 15 October 23, 2017 Order, Dkt. 80). Plaintiffs’ UCL and CLRA claims are largely derivative of 16 their Karmette Act claims and can be proven the same way. The subclass’s usury claims also can 17 be proven or disproven based on RAC’s database and other records, which can be used to establish 18 the effective rate of interest for each transaction.

19 The Court has also asked the parties to brief whether the “Requirement of Individual 20 Arbitration” paragraph in RAC’s form arbitration agreement prohibits plaintiff Blair from 21 pursuing this action on behalf of consumers with transactions subject to that agreement. Dkt. 82, 22 83. As explained infra at 20-25, that prohibition is neither applicable nor enforceable.

23 II. THE KARNETTE RENTAL-PURCHASE ACT

24 A. Background

25 Rent-to-own transactions offer consumers access to furniture, appliances, electronics, and 26 other household merchandise for what appears to be a low periodic payment with an option to 27 purchase. Customers who enter into rent-to-own contracts typically make fixed weekly or 28 monthly payments and obtain ownership after completing the specified term of payments. See

1 Declaration of Zachariah P. Dostart (“Dostart Decl.”) Ex. 1 at 2. Rent-to-own transactions are 2 particularly enticing to low-income consumers who cannot afford up-front retail prices and may be 3 unable to obtain credit through conventional means. Yet rent-to-own transactions can end up 4 being extremely costly. Often, the total cost of purchasing through RAC is many times the retail 5 price.

6 The Legislature enacted the Karnette Act in 1994 to crack down on price-gouging and 7 deceptive sales practices in the rent-to-own industry, and intended the Act to be “liberally 8 construed to achieve its remedial objectives.” Civ. Code §1812.621. The Legislature recognized 9 that “many low-income consumers who rent major appliances, stereos and other items from RTO 10 businesses with the intent to acquire ownership are not aware that the low periodic fee is actually 11 very high in relation to the actual value of the property if the contract runs for an appreciable 12 length of time.” Dostart Decl. Ex. 1 at 3. The Legislature also cited a survey showing that “the 13 average interest rate charged by the industry is 111%,” and noted that these exorbitant interest 14 rates are incurred primarily by a customer base comprised of those “who cannot afford to purchase 15 an item and do[] not have the credit to finance it.” Ibid. The Legislature’s intent was “to ensure 16 that consumers are protected from misrepresentations and unfair dealings,” to “prohibit unfair or 17 unconscionable conduct toward consumers,” and to “prohibit unfair contract terms, including 18 unreasonable charges.” §1812.621.

19 B. The Karnette Act’s Pricing Limitations

20 The Act’s core substantive provision sets statutory maximums on the dollar amount rent-21 to-own companies can charge for the “Cash Price” and “Total of Payments” of any particular item 22 of merchandise. The “Cash Price” is “the price of the personal property described in the rental-23 purchase agreement that the consumer may pay in cash to the lessor at the inception of the rental-24 purchase agreement to acquire ownership of that personal property.” §1812.622(e). The “Total of 25 Payments” is “the total amount of periodic payments necessary to acquire ownership of the 26 property that is the subject of the rental-purchase agreement if the consumer makes all regularly 27 scheduled payments.” §1812.622(l).

1 The maximum Cash Price and the maximum Total of Payments are both calculated as a 2 function of the “Lessor’s Cost.” The “Lessor’s Cost” is “the documented actual cost, including 3 actual freight charges, of the rental property to the lessor from a wholesaler, distributor, supplier, 4 or manufacturer and net of any discounts, rebates, and incentives.” §1812.622(k).

5 The multiplier used to determine the statutory maximum depends on the type of 6 merchandise at issue and whether the item is new or used. For new items, the maximum Cash
7 Price for “computer systems and appliances” is 1.65 times the Lessor’s Cost; for “electronic sets,” 8 it is 1.7 times the Lessor’s Cost; for “automotive accessories, furniture, jewelry, and musical 9 instruments,” the maximum Cash Price is 1.9 times the Lessor’s Cost; and for “all other items,” it 10 is 1.65 times the Lessor’s Cost. §1812.644(b). The maximum Total of Payments that can be 11 charged for a new item is 2.25 times the maximum Cash Price. §1812.644(c).

12 A similar pricing structure applies to used merchandise. The Total of Payments for used 13 merchandise is limited to the maximum Total of Payments permitted for a first rental of the item 14 when new (as determined by §1812.644(c)) minus (1) for appliances and electronic sets, one-third 15 of the amount of all rental payments paid to the lessor by consumers who previously rented that 16 item, or (2) for furniture, computer systems, and all other items, one-half of the amount of all 17 rental payments paid to the lessor by consumers who previously rented that item. §1812.644(d).
18 For used items, the maximum Cash Price is the maximum Total of Payments permitted under 19 §1812.644(d) divided by 2.25. §1812.644(e).

20 The maximum Cash Price and the maximum Total of Payments are thus multiples of the 21 Lessor’s Cost. The practical implication is that the more money a rent-to-own company can 22 allocate to its Lessor’s Cost, the more it can charge as the Cash Price and the Total of Payments.

23 Every rental-purchase agreement must disclose the Cash Price and Total of Payments 24 applicable to the agreement. §1812.623(a)(4)-(5). It is a violation of the Karnette Act for a rental-
25 purchase agreement to state a Cash Price that exceeds the statutory maximum Cash Price 26 computed in accordance with §1812.644, or to state a Total of Payments that exceeds the statutory 27 maximum Total of Payments computed in accordance with §1812.644. §1812.624(a)(17), (18).

1 C. Summary of the Disputes in This Case

2 1. Whether RAC’s Rental-Purchase Agreements State a Cash Price
3 and/or a Total of Payments That Exceed a Statutory Maximum

4 Plaintiffs contend that RAC violated the Karnette Act’s pricing limitations with respect to 5 its rental-purchase agreements (“RPAs”) in two principal respects.

6 First, although the Karnette Act defines “Lessor’s Cost” as including the “actual freight 7 charges” for delivery of the rental property “to the lessor from a wholesaler, distributor, supplier, 8 or manufacturer,” §1812.622(k) (emphasis added), RAC includes amounts that are neither the 9 “actual” amount of a freight charge nor the cost of transporting merchandise “to” RAC “from” a 10 wholesaler, distributor, supplier, or manufacturer. Instead, RAC includes estimated or projected 11 expenses associated with the intra-company shipment of items from a warehouse or other 12 distribution facility, after RAC has already taken title to the merchandise, to RAC’s retail stores.

13 RAC shipped some items to its retail stores through a wholly-owned subsidiary, RAC 14 National Product Services, LLC (“NPS”). Dostart Decl. Ex. 3 at 11 (Pope depo. 54:4-22). As to 15 most new items that NPS shipped from a warehouse to a RAC retail location, RAC added to its 16 “Purchase Cost” a standard “up-charge” of $23.49 per item. Id. Ex. 3 at 12-16 (Pope depo. 79:23 17 – 80:23; 111:1 – 113:11). RAC also hired a logistics contractor, NFI, Inc. (“NFI”) to handle 18 shipment of some items from a warehouse to RAC’s retail locations. Id. Ex. 3 at 17 (Pope depo.
19 121:1-24). As to those items, RAC “allocated” anticipated costs with the goal of recouping (on a 20 nationwide basis) all payments made to NFI under the logistics contract. Id. Ex. 4 at 22-29 (Parks 21 depo. 104:6 – 111:3). Whether shipped by NPS or NFI, RAC owns all of the merchandise during 22 the entire time of course of transit, having already taken title (id. Ex. 5 at 43-44 (Glasky depo.
23 63:25 – 64:20). Nevertheless, when computing its “Purchase Cost” or “store-landed cost” (the 24 terms RAC uses instead of the statutory term, “Lessor’s Cost”), RAC includes an “up-charge” for 25 shipping those items to itself. Id. Ex. 6 at 50-52 (Cross depo. 64:18 – 66:10 (explaining that 26 Column W of the RAC transaction database, entitled “Purchase Cost,” includes transfer up-27 charges); 67:11 – 68:6 (“store landed cost” is the “fully-loaded cost,” which includes transfer 28 upcharges)). Other than the invoice price paid to the manufacturer or supplier of the merchandise,

1 “up-charges” (also often referred to as “Cost Per Unit,” or “CPU”) associated with intra-company 2 transfers are the only additional costs included within RAC’s “Purchase Cost” data. Id. Ex. 6 at 3 53-54 (Cross depo. 67:19 – 68:7).

4 Plaintiffs contend that RAC’s up-charge/CPU amounts may not lawfully be included in its 5 Lessor’s Cost (as defined in the Karnette Act) when calculating the maximum Cash Price and 6 maximum Total of Payments that can be charged to a consumer. RAC disagrees. This presents a 7 common issue that will drive the resolution of class members’ claims.

8 Second, while the Karnette Act defines “Lessor’s Cost” as “net of any discounts, rebates, 9 and incentives,” §1812.622(k), RAC does not fully subtract all discounts, rebates, and incentives.
10 In some instances, RAC becomes entitled to take a discount, rebate, or incentive from its invoice
11 cost after the merchandise has been shipped from a warehouse to a RAC retail location. Dostart 12 Decl. Ex. 7 at 62-69 (Holihan depo. 81:19 – 83:5; 83:16 – 88:1). When that occurs, RAC 13 generally does not reduce its “Purchase Cost” to reflect the discount, rebate, or incentive it has 14 received. Ibid. That, too, results in an inflated computation of the maximum Cash Price and the 15 maximum Total of Payments for the subject merchandise.

16 Separate and apart from pricing violations rooted in transfer up-charges or unrecognized 17 discounts, rebates, or incentives, the RAC transaction database discloses many transactions for 18 which RAC’s pricing appears to violate the Karnette Act, even using RAC’s stated “Purchase 19 Cost” data. Declaration of David Breshears (“Breshears Decl.”) ¶13.

20 As described in more detail below, among other data, RAC has produced a transaction 21 database that includes information relating to all transactions during the class period. An excerpt 22 of the transaction database, showing only information relating to transactions of the proposed class
23 representatives as discussed herein, is submitted with the Dostart Declaration as Exhibit 2.

24 2. Whether RAC is Required to Include in a “Single Document” All 25 Agreements With Respect to All Rights and Obligations

26 The Karnette Act requires that “[e]very rental-purchase agreement shall be contained in a 27 single document which shall set forth all of the agreements of the lessor and the consumer with 28 respect to the rights and obligations of each party.” §1812.623(a). Plaintiffs contend that RAC

1 violated this provision by requiring plaintiff Blair and many other putative class members to sign 2 separate RPAs and arbitration agreements that were not set forth in a single document. Whether 3 that practice violates the Karnette Act presents another common issue.

4 3. Whether RAC Properly Discloses All Merchandise as “New” or “Used”

5 The Karnette Act requires each RPA to state “[w]hether the property subject to the rental-6 purchase agreement is new or used.” §1812.623(a)(2). In some instances, RAC’s transaction 7 database identifies an item as “new” even though that database shows that RAC previously 8 received rental income for that particular item. Breshears Decl. ¶14. The legality of that practice 9 also raises a common issue.

10 III. STATEMENT OF FACTS

11 A. Plaintiffs’ Rental Purchase Agreements with Rent-A-Center

12 1. Paula Blair

13 On July 27, 2015, plaintiff Blair entered into a RPA with RAC for a General Electric 14 AEM10AT Window Air Conditioner, an “appliance” within the meaning of §1812.622(h).
15 Declaration of Paula Blair (“Blair Decl.”) Ex. 1 (“Blair 2015 Rental Agreement”). RAC’s 16 transaction database reflects that RAC’s “Purchase Cost” for that air conditioner was $259.43.
17 Dostart Decl. Ex. 2. However, that amount includes what plaintiffs contend is an improper up-18 charge of $23.49 for the item to be shipped from the RAC warehouse to the RAC store where 19 Blair obtained it. Id. Ex. 8; id. Ex. 5 at 39-42 (Glasky depo. 59:4 – 62:20); id. Ex. 3 at 12-16 20 (Pope depo. 79:23 – 80:23; 111:1 – 113:11). (In addition to the sources cited here, the amount of 21 each transfer upcharge/CPU for the proposed class representatives and for putative class members 22 can be ascertained from databases that RAC produced on May 4, 2018. See Breshears Decl. ¶¶16-23 19, Dostart Decl. Exs. 15-17.) Accordingly, plaintiffs contend the actual Lessor’s Cost of the air 24 conditioner for purposes of the Karnette Act was $235.94 ($259.43 - $23.49), Civ. Code
25 §1812.622(k), which comports with the unit price of $235.94 reflected in RAC’s purchase order 26 database. Id. Ex. 8. Using $235.94 as the true Lessor’s Cost, the statutory maximum Cash Price 27 for the air conditioner was $389.30 (1.65 x $235.94), Civ. Code §1812.644(b) (1.65 multiplier for 28 “appliances”), and the statutory maximum Total of Payments was $875.93 (2.25 x $389.30), Civ.

1 Code §1812.644(c) (maximum Total of Payments is 2.25 times maximum Cash Price).
2 Accordingly, RAC's stated Cash Price ($428.05) exceeded the statutory maximum Cash Price 3 ($389.30) by $38.75, and RAC's stated Total of Payments ($951.66) exceeded the statutory 4 maximum Total of Payments ($875.93) by $75.73.

5 On or about March 11, 2016, Blair entered into an RPA for a used Microsoft Xbox, an 6 "electronic set" within the meaning of §1812.622(i). Blair Decl. Ex. 3 ("Blair 2016 Rental 7 Agreement"). RAC's transaction database reflects that RAC's "Purchase Cost" for that item was 8 $348.20. Dostart Decl. Ex. 2. However, RAC's purchase order database reflects that the unit cost 9 from the supplier was $331.00, id. Ex. 9, to which RAC added a transfer up-charge of $17.20, id.
10 Ex. 10. Accordingly, plaintiffs contend the actual Lessor's Cost was $331.00. Civ. Code 11 §1812.622(k). Using $331.00 as the Lessor's Cost, the statutory maximum Cash Price for the 12 Xbox was $562.70 ($1.7 \times \331.00) and the statutory maximum Total of Payments was $1,266.07 13 ($2.25 \times $562.70$). Thus, RAC's stated Total of Payments ($1,299.48) exceeded the statutory 14 maximum Total of Payments by $33.41.

15 2. Andrea Robinson

16 On April 28, 2015, plaintiff Robinson entered into an RPA for a 5-month-old used 65" 17 Toshiba Television (Model 65L5400U), an "electronic set" within the meaning of §1812.622(i).
18 Declaration of Andrea Robinson ("Robinson Decl.") Ex. 1 ("Robinson 2015 Rental Agreement").
19 According to RAC's transactions database, RAC's "Purchase Cost" for that television was 20 $963.49. Dostart Decl. Ex. 2. However, RAC's purchase order database reflects that the unit cost 21 for that television was $940.00, id. Ex. 11, to which RAC added a transfer up-charge of $23.49.
22 As noted above, the television was a used item, and RAC's transactions database reflects that 23 RAC had received previous rental payments for that television of $159.93, id. Ex. 2, which 24 required RAC to reduce the permissible Total of Payments by $53.31. Applying the Karnette
25 Act's formula for used merchandise, the statutory maximum Total of Payments was $436.44 26 [$($940 \times 1.7 \times 2.25) = $3,595.50$ if new, less credit of $53.31 = $3,542.19], and the maximum 27 Cash Price was $1,574.30 ($$3,542.19 \div 2.25$). Thus, RAC's stated Total of Payments of 28 $3,478.84 (Robinson Decl. Ex. 1) was within the statutory limit, but RAC's stated Cash Price of 1 $1,614.25 exceeded the statutory maximum Cash Price by $39.95.

2 3. Falechia Harris

3 On October 17, 2015, plaintiff Harris entered into an RPA for two televisions: a 32" LG 4 Television (Model 32LF500B) and a 55" LG Television (Model 55LF6100), each of which 5 constitutes an "electronic set" within the meaning of §1812.622(i). Declaration of Falechia Harris
6 ("Harris Decl.") Ex. 1 ("Harris 2015 Rental Agreement"). According to RAC's transactions
7 database, RAC's total "Purchase Cost" for Harris' televisions was $744.05 ($214.13 for the 32" 8 television and $529.92 for the 55" television). Dostart Decl. Ex. 2. However, RAC's purchase 9 order database reflects that the unit cost from the supplier was $189.47 for the 32" television, id.
10 Ex. 12 and $505.26 for the 55" television, id. Ex. 13. To those amounts RAC added a transfer up-11 charge of $24.66 for each item. See Dostart Decl. Ex. 6 at 53-54 (Cross depo. 67:19 – 68:7) (the 12 only additional costs included in "Purchase Cost" data are for intra-company transfers). Without 13 those up-charges, the two televisions combined had a Lessor's Cost of $694.73, so the statutory 14 maximum Cash Price was $1,181.04 (1.7 x $694.73), and the statutory maximum Total of 15 Payments was $2,657.34. In comparison, RAC's stated Cash Price for the combined televisions 16 was $1,237.26 (which exceeded the statutory maximum by $56.22), and RAC's stated Total of 17 Payments was $2,819.06 (which exceeded the statutory maximum by $161.72).

18 4. Celinda Garza

19 On March 30, 2016, Celinda Garza entered into an RPA for a Frigidaire refrigerator 20 (Model FFSS2314QE), an "appliance" within the meaning of §1812.622(i). Declaration of 21 Celinda Garza ("Garza Decl.") Ex. 1 ("Garza 2016 Rental Agreement"). According to RAC's 22 transactions database, its "Purchase Cost" for Garza's refrigerator was $787.48. Dostart Decl.
23 Ex. 2. However, this amount includes a transfer up-charge of $92.48, id. Ex. 14, so the actual 24 Lessor's Cost was $695.00. Using that figure, the statutory maximum Cash Price was $1,146.75
25 (1.65 x $695.00), and the statutory maximum Total of Payments was $2,580.19. In comparison, 26 RAC's stated Cash Price (Garza Decl. Ex. 1) was $1,299.34 (which exceeded the statutory 27 maximum by $152.59), and RAC's stated Total of Payments was $2,807.22 (which exceeded the 28 statutory maximum by $227.03).

1 Ms. Garza, a putative class member, is requesting to be appointed as a class representative.
2 Rule 23 does not require that a class representative be a named plaintiff. See In re Telectronics
3 Pacing Sys., 172 F.R.D. 271, 283 (S.D. Ohio 1997). In any event, Ms. Garza is willing to be 4 added as a named plaintiff in addition to being a class representative. Garza Decl. ¶ 9.

5 B. Procedural History

6 On March 13, 2017, Blair filed this case as a class action in Alameda County Superior
7 Court. RAC removed the case on April 25, 2017, pursuant to the Class Action Fairness Act, 28
8 U.S.C. §1332(d). Dkt. 1. After an initial amendment, Dkt. 16, plaintiffs filed a Second Amended 9 Complaint (“2AC”), adding Robinson and Harris as named plaintiffs. Dkt. 43.

10 In the 2AC, plaintiffs alleged that RAC violated the Karnette Act, CLRA, UCL and state 11 usury laws by charging more than the statutory maximum Cash Price and/or Total of Payments, 12 and by failing to set out all terms of the parties’ agreements in a single document. Dkt. 43 ¶¶85-86, 13 90-95, 105-08. Plaintiffs sought a public injunction on behalf of the People of the State of 14 California to enjoin future statutory violations and to require RAC to provide an accounting of 15 monies obtained from California consumers and individualized notice to those consumers of their 16 statutory rights. Id. ¶¶94, 101, 108. Plaintiffs also sought declaratory relief, compensatory 17 damages and restitution, and attorneys’ fees and costs.

18 RAC moved to compel plaintiff Blair to individually arbitrate her claims arising from her 19 2015 transaction. Dkt. 22. The Court denied the motion, ruling that McGill v. Citibank, 2 Cal.5th 20 945, 962 (2017), precludes the enforcement of any agreement that purports to prohibit individuals 21 from pursuing claims for public injunctive relief, because doing so would “seriously compromise 22 the public purposes [the laws] were intended to serve.” Dkt. 82 at 3 (quoting McGill, 2 Cal.5th at 23 962). The Court ruled that McGill controlled Blair’s 2015 Karnette Act, CLRA, and UCL claims, 24 all of which sought public injunctive relief, but not her 2015 usury claim, which the Court held 25 could not support a public injunction. Id. at 3-10.

26 Initially, the Court also struck Blair’s class action allegations, based on the second 27 sentence in Paragraph D of RAC’s arbitration agreement, entitled “Requirement of Individual 28 Arbitration.” The first sentence of Paragraph D provides “[y]ou and RAC agree that arbitration

1 shall be conducted on an individual basis, and that neither you nor RAC may seek, nor may the 2 Arbitrator award, relief that would affect RAC account holders other than you.” Dkt. 22-1 ¶D.
3 The second sentence, which the Court originally relied upon to strike Blair’s class action 4 allegations, provides, “[t]here will be no right or authority for any dispute to be brought, heard, or 5 arbitrated as a class, collective, mass, private attorney general, or representative action.” Dkt. 22-1 6 ¶D; Dkt. 62 at 10. Plaintiffs sought leave to pursue reconsideration, Dkt. 70, based on language in 7 the arbitration agreement establishing that procedural limitations imposed by the arbitration 8 agreement were intended to apply only in the context of arbitration, not to claims properly litigated 9 in court. Dkt. 70 at 6-9. Plaintiffs also demonstrated that because the Federal Arbitration Act has 10 no preemptive effect absent an enforceable arbitration agreement, if that second sentence were 11 interpreted to apply outside the arbitration context, the resulting prohibition against class actions 12 in court would be unenforceable under California law. Id. at 9-11. The Court then amended its 13 prior order to remove the language striking Blair’s class action claim, Dkt. 82, and ruled that 14 “[i]ssues regarding class action claims will be decided at the class certification hearing.” Dkt. 83.¹

15 Plaintiffs now seek certification of a class comprising all individuals who, on or after 16 March 13, 2013, entered into a rent-to-own transaction with Defendants in California, and a usury 17 subclass of those for whose transactions RAC cannot produce a signed arbitration agreement.
18
20

21 ¹ Should the Court determine that the second sentence of Paragraph D of RAC’s standard 22 arbitration agreement was intended to apply to disputes resolved outside of the arbitration context, 23 and if the Court should further determine that that sentence is effective under California law to 24 preclude signatories from pursuing class treatment for KARNETTE Act, CLRA, and/or UCL claims 25 properly brought in court, it would still be appropriate for the Court to certify a subclass of 26 consumers for whose transactions RAC is unable to produce a signed arbitration agreement. See 27 Dkt. 54. The parties have stipulated that plaintiffs’ subclass is sufficiently numerous for purposes
28 of F.R.C.P. 23(a)(1). Dkt. 104; see also Krzesniak v. Cendant Corp., No. C 05-5156, 2007 WL 1795703, at *7 (N.D. Cal. Jun. 30, 2007) (“Although there is no exact number, some courts have held that numerosity may be presumed when the class comprises forty or more members.”).

1 IV. ARGUMENT

2 A. Legal Standard for Class Certification

3 “Class actions have two primary purposes: (1) to accomplish judicial economy by avoiding 4 multiple suits, and (2) to protect rights of persons who might not be able to present claims on an 5 individual basis.” Negrete v. Allianz Life Ins. Co., 238 F.R.D. 482, 487 (C.D. Cal. 2006). A party 6 seeking to certify a class must demonstrate that she has met the “four threshold requirements of 7 Federal Rule of Procedure 23(a): (i) numerosity; (ii) commonality; (iii) typicality; and (iv)
8 adequacy of representation.” Levy, 716 F.3d at 512. Once these four prerequisites are satisfied, a 9 court must consider whether the proposed class can be maintained under at least one of the 10 requirements of F.R.C.P. 23(b). Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Dukes, 564 U.S. 338, 345 (2011).

11 “In determining the propriety of a class action, the question is not whether the plaintiff or 12 plaintiffs have stated a cause of action or will prevail on the merits, but rather whether the 13 requirements of Rule 23 are met.” Eisen v. Carlisle & Jacquelin, 417 U.S. 156, 178 (1974); Ellis 14 v. Costco Wholesale Corp., 657 F.3d 970, 981, 983 n.8 (9th Cir. 2001).

15 B. Plaintiffs’ Proposed Class Satisfies All Rule 23(a) Requirements

16 1. Numerosity

17 Numerosity exists if “the class is so numerous that joinder of all members is 18 impracticable.” F.R.C.P. 23(a)(1). Plaintiffs’ proposed class is comprised of more than 338,000 19 California consumers. Dkt. 91-1 ¶2 (Cross Declaration). RAC has stipulated that plaintiffs’ 20 proposed usury subclass satisfies the numerosity element. Dkt. 104 ¶1.

21 2. Commonality

22 Commonality exists if “there are questions of law or fact common to the class,” meaning 23 “that the determination of [a question’s] truth or falsity will resolve an issue that is central to the 24 validity of each one of the claims in one stroke.” Abdullah v. U.S. Sec. Assoc., Inc., 731 F.3d 952, 25 957 (9th Cir. 2013) (internal quotation marks omitted). “This does not, however, mean that every 26 question of law or fact must be common to the class; all that Rule 23(a)(2) requires is a single 27 significant question of law or fact.” Id. (emphasis in original) (internal quotation marks omitted).

1 In this case, there are a number of common legal issues, including: (1) whether a lessor is 2 allowed to include in its “Lessor’s Cost” intra-company transfer charges that do not reflect an 3 actual freight expense for shipping an item to the lessor from a wholesaler, distributor, supplier, or 4 manufacturer; (2) whether a lessor is allowed to ignore discounts, rebates, or incentives that the 5 lessor receives from a supplier or manufacturer after the merchandise has left the lessor’s 6 warehouse; (3) whether RAC’s practice of presenting customers with an arbitration agreement 7 separate from the RPA violates the requirement that “[e]very rental-purchase agreement shall be 8 contained in a single document,” §1812.623(a); and (4) what are the appropriate remedies, 9 injunctive and otherwise, for the alleged violations. Plaintiffs’ proposed usury subclass also 10 presents common issues, including (1) whether RAC’s rent-to-own transactions are a “loan or 11 forbearance” within the meaning of Cal. Const. art. XV, sec. 1; (2) whether the “loan or 12 forbearance” is “absolutely repayable by the borrower” under the terms of the RPA; and (3) 13 whether RAC had a “willful intent” to enter into usurious transactions with class members. See 14 Ghirardo v. Antonioli, 8 Cal.4th 791, 798 (1994) (describing elements).

15 3. Typicality

16 Typicality exists if “the claims or defenses of the representative parties are typical of the 17 claims or defenses of the class.” F.R.C.P. 23(a)(3). “The test of typicality is whether other 18 members have the same or similar injury, whether the action is based on conduct which is not 19 unique to the named plaintiff[], and whether other class members have been injured by the same 20 course of conduct.” Wolin v. Jaguar Land Rover N. Am., LLC, 617 F.3d 1168, 1175 (9th Cir.
21 2010) (quotations omitted).

22 Plaintiffs’ claims, like the claims of absent class members, arise from RAC’s common 23 policies and practices. Plaintiffs contend that RAC charged each of them unlawfully high prices, 24 in violation of the Karnette Act, the CLRA, the UCL, and California usury law. Supra at 2-9.
25 RAC also violated the Karnette Act, the CLRA, and the UCL by failing to set forth all “rights and 26 obligations of each party” in a single document. Blair Decl. Exs. 1-2. Because the factual and 27 legal circumstances giving rise to class members’ claims are substantially similar, the proposed 28

1 class representatives have sufficient incentive to pursue those claims on behalf of all class 2 members, and typicality is satisfied.

3 4. Adequacy of Representation

4 Class representatives and class counsel are adequate if they “will fairly and adequately 5 protect the interests of the class.” F.R.C.P. 23(a)(4). This standard is met if the representatives 6 “have [no] conflicts of interest with other class members” and will “prosecute the action 7 vigorously on behalf of the class.” Staton v. Boeing Co., 327 F.3d 938, 957 (9th Cir. 2003).

8 The proposed class representatives have the same types of interests and suffered the same 9 types of injury as other class members, and none have conflicts of interest. Blair Decl. ¶¶25-26; 10 Robinson Decl. ¶¶15-16; Harris Decl. ¶¶16-17; Garza Decl. ¶¶18-19. In addition, the proposed 11 class representatives have already provided valuable assistance in the investigation and 12 prosecution of this matter. Blair Decl. ¶¶18-22; Robinson Decl. ¶¶8-12; Harris Decl. ¶¶8-13; 13 Garza Decl. ¶¶10-15. Each understands the responsibilities of a class representative and has 14 committed to putting the interests of the class ahead of her own personal interests. Blair Decl.
15 ¶¶24, 26; Robinson Decl. ¶¶14, 16; Harris Decl. ¶¶15, 17; Garza Decl. ¶¶17, 19. They are 16 adequate class representatives within the meaning of Rule 23(a)(4), as are plaintiffs’ counsel who 17 have extensive experience in class action litigation and have vigorously pursued these claims from 18 the outset. Rubin Decl. ¶¶3, 5; Dostart Decl. ¶¶19-20.

19 C. Certification is Appropriate under Rule 23(b)

20 Class certification is appropriate under all three of the alternative Rule 23(b) prongs.

21 1. A Class Should Be Certified Under Rule 23(b)(3) Because Common 22 Questions Predominate Over Any Individual Issues and Class 23 Treatment is Superior to Individual Adjudications

24 “To qualify for certification under [Rule 23(b)(3)], a class must satisfy two conditions in 25 addition to the Rule 23(a) prerequisites: common questions must ‘predominate over any questions 26 affecting only individual members,’ and class resolution must be ‘superior to other available 27 methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy.’” Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp., 28 150 F.3d 1011, 1022 (9th Cir. 1998) (quoting F.R.C.P. 23(b)(3)). The predominance inquiry “tests whether proposed classes are sufficiently cohesive to warrant adjudication by

1 representation,” and focuses on the “relationship between the common and individual issues.” Id.
2 (quotation marks and citation omitted).

3 “When common questions present a significant aspect of the case and they can be resolved 4 for all members of the class in a single adjudication, there is clear justification for handling the 5 dispute on a representative rather than on an individual basis.” Hanlon, 150 F.3d at 1022. That 6 some class members may have been injured to different degrees, or that others may not have been 7 injured at all, does not defeat certification. See Torres v. Mercer Canyons, Inc., 835 F.3d 1125, 8 1136 (9th Cir. 2016) (“[E]ven a well-defined class may inevitably contain some individuals who 9 have suffered no harm as a result of a defendant’s unlawful conduct.”); Leyva, 716 F.3d 510, 513
10 (9th Cir. 2013) (“In this circuit, however, damage calculations alone cannot defeat certification.”).

11 (a) The Karnette Act pricing claims

12 Plaintiffs’ Karnette Act claims are particularly well-suited for class treatment. With 13 respect to their core claim that RAC violated (and continues to violate) the statutory price caps, 14 liability will be established through mathematical calculations using statutory formulae and RAC’s 15 records. The calculation of those statutory maximums rests on four readily identified variables:
16 the Lessor’s Cost, the category of the item (e.g., furniture, computer, appliance), whether the item 17 is new or used and, if used, the prior rental income RAC received.

18 The Act requires RAC to maintain this information, §1812.644(a), and RAC, in response 19 to this Court’s order requiring it to “produce transactional data for rent-to-own transactions within 20 California during the purported class period . . . sufficient to calculate the formulas under the 21 Karnette Act (e.g., maximum cash price and maximum total of payments, etc.),” Dkt. 80, produced 22 a database setting forth information on each of more than one million items of merchandise sold or 23 leased to approximately 338,000 California consumers during the class period. Dkt. 91-1 ¶2. That 24 database includes, inter alia: name and contact information of the lessee; date of the RPA; term 25 and monthly rate; Total of Payments; Cash Price; serial number, brand, model, and description of 26 the item of merchandise; category of each item for purposes of determining the Karnette Act’s 27 applicable multiplier; amount RAC contends is its “Purchase Cost”; and whether the item was new 28

1 or used and, if used, the previous rental payments for the item. Dkt. 91-1 ¶2; Breshears Decl. ¶¶5-2 10; see also Dostart Decl. Ex. 2.

3 If the Court agrees with plaintiffs that RAC may not include up-charges for intra-company
4 transfers in its Lessor's Cost (because intra-company transfers are not "to" the lessor "from" a 5 manufacturer or supplier, and because such amounts were not "actual" freight charges), those up-6 charge amounts can be deducted from RAC's reported "Purchase Cost" in order to arrive at the 7 Lessor's Cost within the meaning of the Karnette Act.

8 The calculations are straightforward for new items shipped to RAC retail locations by 9 NPS, because for that merchandise RAC generally added a fixed up-charge of $23.49 per item.
10 Dostart Decl. Ex. 5 at 45-46 (Glasky depo. 144:22-145-15). RAC recently produced a database 11 that includes more than 37,000 rows identifying all items shipped by NPS to California during the 12 class period, together with the corresponding up-charge/CPU amount. Dostart Decl. ¶16 and Ex.
13 15 at 86 (excerpt of NPS database). The calculations are also straightforward for items shipped to 14 RAC retail locations by NFI, because for those items RAC recently produced data showing the 15 dollar amount of the up-charge/CPU to be allocated to each item during the class period. Dostart 16 Decl. ¶¶ 17-18, Ex. 16 (summary table of CPU allocations prepared by Mr. Parks), Ex. 17 at 90 17 (excerpt of NFI database); see also id. Ex. 4 at 32-34 (Parks depo. 149:8 – 151:2). These NPS and 18 NFI databases can be used to identify and quantify any up-charge/CPU that RAC allocated to each 19 item of merchandise. Breshears Decl. ¶¶15-19. Backing out those amounts from RAC's Purchase 20 Cost data would produce figures more in line with the statutory definition of Lessor's Cost.
21 Because all class members' claims can be adjudicated using a "common method of proof," Etter, 22 323 F.R.D. at 313, this case is well-suited for class treatment. See Leyva, 716 F.3d at 514.

23 Similarly, if the Court agrees with plaintiffs that RAC must reduce its "Purchase Cost" to 24 take into account each discount, rebate, and incentive, regardless of when RAC becomes entitled 25 to it and regardless of whether the merchandise has left the warehouse, those adjustments can be 26 made. RAC has produced records identifying all discounts, rebates, or incentives during the class 27 period, including which discounts, rebates, or incentives were (or were not) already taken into 28 account, together with identification of the particular items of merchandise. Dostart Decl. Ex. 7 at 1 60-61; 70-71 (Holihan depo. 10:20 – 11:19; 121:16 – 122:7).

2 The Court has already rejected RAC’s attempt to compel Blair’s 2015 Karnette Act claim
3 to arbitration. Dkt. 82. Because other putative class members signed either the same arbitration 4 agreement or no arbitration agreement at all, the scope and availability of public injunctive relief 5 on plaintiffs’ claims is a predominating class issue. Relatedly, to the extent RAC disputes that it 6 bears the burden of establishing which putative class members have arbitration agreements 7 (having conceded that four of the five transactions of the proposed class representatives are not 8 covered by an arbitration agreement and that many other customers also have no locatable 9 arbitration agreement), this burden-of-proof issue also predominates. See Etter v. Allstate Ins. Co., 10 323 F.R.D. 308, 315 (N.D. Cal. 2017) (“[I]nsofar as defendants are the ones responsible for the 11 absence of more detailed records . . . , they should not benefit from their poor recordkeeping by 12 dodging a class action on that basis.”) (Alsup, J.).

13 The Court will be presented with common questions of statutory interpretation that 14 predominate as well. See Preap v. Johnson, 303 F.R.D. 566, 585 (N.D. Cal. 2014); Ortega, 258 15 F.R.D. at 368-70. These include whether the Karnette Act allows intra-company transfer costs to 16 be included in “Lessor’s Cost.” §1812.622(k). The remedial issues in this case also predominate, 17 including what the scope of any injunctive relief should be and how to calculate monetary 18 damages and restitution. See Nozzi v. Hous. Auth. of L.A., No. CV 07-380, 2016 WL 2647677, at 19 *3 (C.D. Cal. May 6, 2016); In re NCAA I-A Walk-on Football Players Litig., 2006 WL 1207915, 20 at *5 (W.D. Wash. May 3, 2006); Newberg on Class Actions §3:27 (5th ed. 2013).

21 (b) The “single document” claim

22 Common issues also predominate with respect to the significance of RAC failing to present
23 all rights and obligations “in a single document.” §1812.623(a). Plaintiffs contend that RAC’s 24 form RPA and arbitration agreement are two different documents, not a “single document” for 25 purposes of the Act. RAC apparently contends that the two separate documents are somehow 26 treated as a single document (even though for some class members, RAC cannot even find an 27 arbitration agreement). Because the RPAs and arbitration agreement are form documents, 28 identical from one customer to the next except for the transaction details, the Court need only

1 review exemplars of each to determine whether they constitute a “single document.” No 2 individualized inquiry is necessary. Abdullah, 731 F.3d at 957.

3 (c) The CLRA and UCL claims

4 Plaintiffs’ CLRA and UCL claims are largely derivative of their Kernet Act claims.
5 Because these claims are derivative, they present the same predominant common questions and 6 should also be certified. See, e.g., Mendez v. R&L Carriers, Inc., No. C 11-2478, 2012 WL
7 5868973, at *18 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 19, 2012) (certifying derivative claims where underlying claims 8 are suitable for certification); In re Autozone, Inc., 289 F.R.D. 526, 529 n.4 (N.D. Cal. 2012).

9 The CLRA’s “underlying purpose[]” is “to protect consumers against unfair and deceptive 10 business practices and to provide efficient and economical procedures to secure such protection.” 11 Civ. Code §1760. The CLRA is to be “liberally construed” to promote those purposes. Id.
12 Plaintiffs have alleged that RAC’s challenged practices violate the CLRA in two ways. First, as 13 this Court has already held, Dkt. 82, RAC’s arbitration agreement violates McGill, 2 Cal.5th 945, 14 because it prohibits the arbitrator from awarding any relief that would affect other RAC account 15 holders, thus forcing customers to forfeit their right to pursue public injunctive relief in any forum, 16 judicial or arbitral. That same provision also violates §1770(a)(4), which prohibits “[r]epresenting 17 that a transaction confers or involves rights, remedies, or obligations that it does not have or 18 involve, or that are prohibited by law.” Second, because RAC’s prices violate the Kernet Act, 19 they are necessarily unconscionable. See Ontiveros v. DHL Exp., Inc., 164 Cal.App.4th 494, 510
20 (2008), recognized as abrogated on other grounds by Tiri v. Lucky Chances, Inc., 226 Cal.App.4th 21 231, 248-49 (2014). Accordingly, RAC’s unlawful prices also violate the CLRA, which prohibits 22 “[i]nserting an unconscionable provision in the contract.” Civ. Code §1771(a)(19).

23 The UCL is violated whenever a defendant’s conduct is: “(1) unlawful; (2) unfair; 24 (3) fraudulent; or (4) false advertising.” Campion v. Old Republic Home Protection Co., Inc., 272 25 F.R.D. 517, 532 (S.D. Cal. 2011). “Each prong of the UCL is a separate and distinct theory of 26 liability.” Id. For purposes of the “unlawful” prong, the UCL “borrows violations of other laws 27 and treats them as unlawful practices that the unfair competition law makes independently 28 actionable.” Beaver v. Tarsadia Hotels, 816 F.3d 1170, 1177 (9th Cir. 2016) (quoting Cal-Tech

1 Commc'ns, Inc. v. L.A. Cellular Tel. Co., 20 Cal.4th 163 (1999)). RAC's practices are unlawful in 2 each of the ways described above. Because the UCL claim is derivative, it is suitable for 3 certification, like the underlying Kernet Act claims.

4 (d) The subclass members' usury claim

5 The Court should also certify a Rule 23(b)(3) subclass comprised of those consumers for 6 whose transactions RAC is unable to produce a signed arbitration agreement. California 7 Constitution Art. XV §1 provides that "no corporation shall by charging any fee, bonus, 8 commission, discount or other compensation receive from a borrower more than the interest 9 authorized by this section upon any loan or forbearance of any money, goods or things in action."
10 For items that "are for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes," the maximum 11 permissible interest rate is 10%. Id.

12 "The essential elements of usury are: (1) The transaction must be a loan or forbearance; 13 (2) the interest to be paid must exceed the statutory maximum; (3) the loan and interest must be 14 absolutely repayable by the borrower; and (4) the lender must have a willful intent to enter into a 15 usurious transaction." Ghirardo, 8 Cal.4th at 798. Common questions predominate with respect 16 to plaintiffs' usury claims, including (1) whether RAC's rent-to-own transactions are a "loan or 17 forbearance" within the meaning of Art. XV, §1; (2) whether the "loan or forbearance" is 18 "absolutely repayable by the borrower" under the RPA; and (3) whether RAC had a "willful 19 intent" to enter into usurious transactions with class members. Whether particular transactions 20 violate the 10% maximum can be determined by querying the RAC database to establish whether 21 the total dollar amount received in rental payments exceeds the Lessor's Cost, Cash Price, or other 22 appropriate benchmark by more than 10% compounded over the term of the RPA.

23 (e) Class treatment is superior to individual adjudications

24 The final requirement of Rule 23(b)(3) is that plaintiffs must demonstrate "that a class 25 action is superior to other available methods for fairly and efficiently adjudicating the 26 controversy." "[T]he purpose of the superiority requirement is to assure that the class action is the 27 most efficient and effective means of resolving the controversy." Wolin, 617 F.3d at 1175 28 (internal quotation marks omitted). Here, that is plainly the case.

1 Each Rule 23(b)(3) superiority factor supports certification. Plaintiffs' core Karnette Act
2 claim can efficiently be adjudicated using common proof. See supra at 14-15. There should be no
3 particular "difficulties in managing" this case as a class action. F.R.C.P. 23(b)(3)(D). Plaintiffs 4 are not aware of other pending actions addressing these issues, F.R.C.P. 23(b)(3)(B). And there is 5 no better forum than this Court to hear plaintiffs' claims, F.R.C.P. 23(b)(3)(C).

6 The "class members' interests in individually controlling the prosecution or defense of 7 separate actions," F.R.C.P. 23(b)(3)(A), also weighs in favor of certification. Here, the damages 8 recoverable by any particular class member are relatively small, and it would be nearly impossible 9 for most class members to retain counsel and pursue their claims on an individual basis—even if 10 they knew about their Karnette Act rights and were able to evaluate potential violations. "Where 11 recovery on an individual basis would be dwarfed by the cost of litigating on an individual basis, 12 this factor weighs in favor of class certification." Wolin, 617 F.3d at 1175. This is surely the case 13 here, where class members obtained items through rent-to-own transactions precisely because they 14 are not people of means. If class members were required to proceed individually or not at all, 15 RAC would be largely immunized from the consequences of its unlawful practices.

16 2. A Class Should Be Certified for Injunctive Relief Under Rule 23(b)(2)

17 A class may be certified under Rule 23(b)(2) where "the party opposing the class has acted 18 or refused to act on grounds that apply generally to the class, so that final injunctive relief or 19 corresponding declaratory relief is appropriate respecting the class as a whole." F.R.C.P. 23(b)(2).
20 "Unlike Rule 23(b)(3), a plaintiff does not need to show predominance of common issues or 21 superiority of class adjudication to certify a Rule 23(b)(2) class. Rather, '[i]t is sufficient if class 22 members complain of a pattern or practice that is generally applicable to the class as a whole.
23 Even if some class members have not been injured by the challenged practice, a class may 24 nevertheless be appropriate.'" In re Yahoo Mail Litig., 308 F.R.D. 577, 598 (N.D. Cal. 2015) 25 (quoting Walters v. Reno, 145 F.3d 1032, 1047 (9th Cir. 1998)). Moreover, "questions of 26 manageability and judicial economy are . . . irrelevant to 23(b)(2) class actions." Rodriguez v.
27 Hayes, 591 F.3d 1105, 1125 (9th Cir. 2010).

1 “Class certification under Rule 23(b)(2) is appropriate only where the primary relief sought
2 is declaratory or injunctive.” Zinser v. Accufix Research Instit., Inc., 253 F.3d 1180, 1195 (9th
3 Cir. 2001). Nonetheless, “[a] class seeking monetary damages may be certified pursuant to Rule 4 23(b)(2) where such relief is ‘merely incidental to [the] primary claim for injunctive relief.’” Id.
5 (quoting Probe v. State Teachers’ Retirement Sys., 780 F.2d 776, 780 (9th Cir. 1986)).

6 Here, plaintiffs seek a public injunction on their Karnette Act, CLRA, and UCL claims on 7 behalf of the people of the State of California that would, among other things: (1) enjoin RAC
8 from committing future violations, (2) require RAC to provide an accounting of all monies 9 obtained from California consumers under RPAs entered into in violation of the Karnette Act or 10 the CLRA, (3) require RAC to provide individualized notice of statutory rights to all consumers
11 who entered into such contracts with RAC in California during the applicable limitations period 12 (including their right to restitution of all monies paid to RAC, while being permitted to keep the 13 merchandise they rented), (4) require RAC to provide individualized notice to each such customer 14 of the procedures available for enforcing that customer’s rights under the Karnette Act and CLRA, 15 and (5) establish an effective monitoring mechanism to ensure RAC’s continued compliance with 16 the terms of the injunction. Dkt. 43 ¶¶89, 96, 110.

17 Rule 23(b)(2) certification is appropriate because plaintiffs challenge a “pattern or practice 18 that is generally applicable to the class as a whole.” Walters, 145 F.3d at 1047. Plaintiffs 19 challenge RAC’s business practices that result in systematic violations of the Act’s pricing and 20 single document requirements. The declaratory and injunctive relief plaintiffs seek for these 21 violations is “appropriate respecting the class as a whole.”² F.R.C.P. 23(b)(2).

23 ² Plaintiffs do not argue that the monetary damages they seek are “incidental” to their request for 24 injunctive and declaratory relief. See Ellis v. Costco Wholesale Corp., 657 F.3d 970, 987 (9th Cir.
25 2011). Nonetheless, should the Court decline to certify plaintiffs’ proposed class under Rule 26 23(b)(3), or even if it does certify a Rule 23(b)(3) class, the Court should also certify a Rule 27 23(b)(2) class for the purpose of seeking declaratory and injunctive relief for the same violations.
28 See, e.g., I.B. by and through Bohannon v. Facebook, Inc., 82 F.Supp.3d 1115, 1132-33 (N.D. Cal.
2015); Jones v. ConAgra Foods, Inc., No. C 12-1633, 2014 WL 2702726, at *12 (N.D. Cal. Jun.
13, 2014).

1 D. The Procedural Limitations in RAC’s Arbitration Agreement Were Not 2 Intended to Apply Outside of the Arbitration Context, and Any Prohibition on 3 Pursuing This Class Action in Court Would Be Unenforceable

4 The Court previously reserved the question of whether the second sentence of Paragraph D 5 of RAC’s Arbitration Agreement was intended to prohibit class actions in court, and if so, whether 6 such a provision would be enforceable in this case. That prohibition, set forth not in the RPA but 7 in RAC’s “Consumer Arbitration Agreement,” states:

8 (D) Requirement of Individual Arbitration: You and RAC agree that arbitration
9 shall be conducted on an individual basis, and that neither you nor RAC may seek, 10 nor may the Arbitrator award, relief that would affect RAC account holders other 11 than you. There will be no right or authority for any dispute to be brought, heard, or 12 arbitrated as a class, collective, mass, private attorney general, or representative 13 action. Nor shall the Arbitrator have any authority to hear or preside over any such 14 dispute or to join or consolidate arbitrations involving more than one consumer 15 unless RAC and the affected consumers all agree in writing. . . . Regardless of 16 anything else in your Consumer Contract, this Agreement, or the arbitration 17 provider’s rules or procedures, the interpretation, applicability, and enforceability of 18 this Paragraph, including, but not limited to, any claim that all or part of this 19 Paragraph is void or voidable, may be determined only by a court. Any such court 20 challenge shall be governed by the law of the customer’s mailing address at the time 21 the dispute arises, but only to the extent permitted and not preempted by the FAA or 22 other federal law. If there is a final judicial determination that applicable law 23 precludes enforcement of this Paragraph’s limitations as to a particular claim for 24 relief, then that claim (and only that claim) must be severed from the arbitration and 25 may be brought in court.

26 Dkt. 22-1 at 11 (italics added).

27 This paragraph does not preclude certification of plaintiffs’ claims for relief in court. By 28 its own terms, the stated prohibition applies only to arbitration proceedings and to the authority of the Arbitrator. Moreover, because this Court has already made “a final determination that applicable law precludes enforcement of this Paragraph’s limitations as to [plaintiffs’ Karnette Act, CLRA, and UCL] claim[s] for relief,” the Agreement requires those claims to be “brought in court”—where any class action prohibition would be unenforceable under California law.

1 1. By Its Terms, The Second Sentence of Paragraph D Does Not Apply to 2 Court Proceedings

3 California contracts must be construed under the well-settled principles of Civ. Code.
4 §1635 et seq. Those principles weigh heavily in favor of construing the class action prohibition in 5 Paragraph D to be limited only to claims to be resolved in arbitration.

1 RAC's class action prohibition is contained in a document entitled "Consumer Arbitration 2 Agreement." Dkt. 22-1 at 10 (italics added). Paragraph K of that Agreement states that "[t]his is 3 the complete Agreement of the parties on the subject of arbitration of claims or disputes." Id. at 4 13. Had the parties intended that prohibition to apply to claims that were not subject to arbitration, 5 they would have included it in RAC's RPA or some other document.

6 Not only is RAC's prohibition set forth in its Consumer Arbitration Agreement, but it is 7 presented in the paragraph entitled "Requirement of Individual Arbitration," where it is 8 surrounded by at least four other provisions that can only apply to arbitration proceedings. Dkt.
9 22-1 at 11 (italics added, bold in original). The first sentence of Paragraph D states that 10 "arbitration shall be conducted on an individual basis" Id. (emphasis added). The second 11 sentence, which RAC relies upon for its reference to "any dispute," must be read in conjunction 12 with the very next sentence, which limits "the Arbitrator['s] authority to hear or preside over any 13 such dispute," meaning any group action dispute in arbitration. Id. (emphasis added). There is no 14 similar limitation on judicial authority to preside over class cases.

15 The restrictions imposed by the fourth sentence are also limited to arbitrations. It provides 16 that "the Arbitrator shall be bound by rulings in prior arbitrations involving the same customer," 17 and that "the Arbitrator shall not be bound by rulings in prior arbitrations involving different 18 customers." Id. (emphasis added). Reading Paragraph D in context and as a whole, there is no 19 basis for concluding that the second sentence was intended to have any application outside the 20 arbitration context. Civ. Code §1641 ("The whole of a contract is to be taken together, so as to 21 give effect to every part, if reasonably practicable, each clause helping to interpret the other."); see 22 also id. §1650 ("Particular clauses of a contract are subordinate to its general intent."). Moreover, 23 if RAC's construction were correct, Paragraph H would require that "[j]udicial review [of any 24 order of the Court or arbitrator] be governed by the Federal Arbitration Act," Dkt. 22-1 at 13, an 25 absurd and unlawful result. A similarly absurd result would occur if the prohibition against the 26 arbitrator "join[ing] or consolidate[ing] arbitrations involving more than one consumer" applied to 27 court actions, where joinder, consolidation, and class actions are commonplace and expressly 28 authorized by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

1 A valid waiver of the right to pursue non-waivable public law rights in court on a class
2 action basis requires a far clearer expression of the parties' intent than the RAC Arbitration
3 Agreement provides. Quite simply, nothing in that Agreement limits or restricts claims that it 4 allows to be brought in court; and if RAC had intended the Arbitration Agreement to impose such 5 limitations or restrictions, it could have done so clearly and unambiguously. As it is, the provision 6 must be construed "most strongly" against RAC as the unilateral drafter of the form contract 7 language. Civ. Code §1654; see also Tahoe Nat'l Bank v. Phillips, 4 Cal.3d 11, 20 (1971).

8 2. Class Action Prohibitions Are Unenforceable Outside the Arbitration
9 Context

10 (a) The CLRA and Karnette Act forbid waiver of the right to 11 pursue statutory claims on a class action basis

12 Even if the parties had intended RAC's Arbitration Agreement to prohibit class actions as 13 to claims properly "brought in court," such a provision would be unenforceable. The Karnette Act 14 and CLRA expressly prohibit pre-dispute agreements that force California consumers to forfeit the 15 right to enforce statutory rights on a class or other group action basis.

16 A California consumer may "bring [a CLRA] action on behalf of himself and such other 17 consumers to recover damages or obtain other relief as provided for in Section 1780" when "the 18 unlawful method, act, or practice [at issue] has caused damage to other consumers similarly 19 situated." Civ. Code §1751, 1781(a) (italics added.) This provision, together with the other 20 provisions of §1781, entitles consumers to bring CLRA claims as a class and prohibits any pre-21 dispute waiver of that right. Specifically, Civil Code §1751 states, "Any waiver by a consumer of 22 the provisions of this title is contrary to public policy and shall be unenforceable and void."

23 The Karnette Act similarly prohibits any provision by which the consumer waives, agrees 24 to waive, or offers to waive "any defense, counterclaim, or right the consumer may have against 25 the lessor, its agent, or its successor in interest" or "any right or remedy against the lessor, its 26 agents, or its successors in interest for any violation of this title or any other illegal act." 27 §1812.624(a)(4) & (a)(15) (emphasis added.) Any such provision in an RPA "shall be void and 28 unenforceable and a violation of this title." §1812(b). Thus, under California law, a consumer's pre-dispute waiver of her statutory right to enforce the Act through a class action is unenforceable.

1 RAC previously argued that California’s statutory anti-waiver protections would be 2 preempted by the FAA if applied to require class arbitration. It is true that the FAA preempts
3 California state law rules that disfavor arbitration. But nothing in the FAA preempts state law 4 protections as applied to judicial proceedings; and this Court has already determined that 5 plaintiffs’ Kernet Act, CLRA, and UCL claims will proceed in court, not arbitration (as should 6 the subclass members’ usury claims).

7 In AT&T Mobility LLC v. Concepcion, 563 U.S. 333, 346-52 (2011), the Supreme Court
8 held that California’s Discover Bank rule was preempted because class arbitration proceedings 9 conflict with the “fundamental attributes of arbitration,” such as speed, informality and low cost.
10 563 U.S. at 344, 348-50. No such conflict exists with respect to judicial proceedings (where there 11 is no obligation to protect any “fundamental attributes of arbitration” and where no principle of 12 FAA preemption applies). Consequently, California’s statutory prohibition against waiver of the 13 right to pursue Kernet Act and CLRA claims on a class action basis in court must be given 14 effect. See America Online, Inc. v. Superior Court, 90 Cal.App.4th 1, 14-15 (2001) (declining to 15 enforce forum selection clause and choice of law clause, which would have been the functional 16 equivalent of a waiver of rights under the CLRA, including the right to file a class action); Doe I 17 v. AOL LLC, 552 F.3d 1077, 1085 (9th Cir. 2009) (same).

18 (b) Outside the arbitration context, California law precludes 19 enforcement of a class action waiver in consumer adhesion
20 contracts

21 In Discover Bank, the California Supreme Court held that consumer class action 22 prohibitions are unconscionable under California law—and thus unenforceable—when contained in 23 a contract of adhesion, “in a setting in which disputes between the contracting parties predictably 24 involve small amounts of damages, and when it is alleged that the party with the superior 25 bargaining power has carried out a scheme to cheat large numbers of consumers out of 26 individually small sums of money” Discover Bank, 36 Cal.4th at 162-63. In that context, a 27 prohibition against class actions “becomes in practice the exemption of the party ‘from 28 responsibility for [its] own fraud, or willful injury to the person or property of another.’ (Civ.
Code § 1668).” Id. at 163.

1 Although the Discover Bank rule is preempted by the FAA where it could result in 2 compulsory class arbitration, see Concepcion, 563 U.S. at 346-48, that rule retains its full vitality
3 outside the arbitration context. See, e.g., In re Yahoo! Litig., 251 F.R.D. 459, 465-70 (C.D.
4 Cal. 2008) (applying the Discover Bank rule to a contractual class action waiver provision that was 5 not part of an arbitration agreement).

6 The Discover Bank rule precludes enforcement of any pre-dispute contractual class action 7 prohibition as applied to plaintiffs' claims for violation of the Kernet Act, the CLRA, UCL, and 8 usury law. The Arbitration Agreement is a contract of adhesion. See Nagrampa v. MailCoups, 9 Inc., 469 F.3d 1257, 1281 (9th Cir. 2006); see also Blair Decl. ¶5 (RAC Arbitration Agreement a 10 standardized contract that she had no opportunity to negotiate). The RAC Arbitration Agreements 11 are entered into in the context of rental-purchase transactions, with respect to which plaintiffs have 12 alleged (among other violations) that RAC charges a Cash Price or a Total of Payments that 13 exceeds the statutory maximum. RAC has vastly superior bargaining power. See Blair Decl. ¶5.
14 And the Second Amended Complaint describes a scheme by which RAC is alleged to have 15 cheated many consumers out of relatively small amounts of money. See Dkt. 43 ¶¶ 7-58.

16 V. CONCLUSION

17 For the foregoing reasons, plaintiffs and the proposed class representatives request that the 18 Court certify the class and subclass identified above, appoint Paula Blair, Andrea Robinson, 19 Falechia Harris, and Celinda Garza as class representatives, and appoint Dostart, Hannink & 20 Coveney LLP and Altshuler Berzon LLP as class counsel.
